Unofficial West Sacramento city council winners

Yolo County elections office glitch incorrectly reported Marna Miller as overall winner in first results

■ Mark Montemayor and Christopher Cabaldon will join Bill Kristoff, Greg Potnick and Wes Beers on the 1996-98 West Sacramento City Council

By Steve Marschke

With a few hundred absentee ballots remaining to be counted, it looks like two new faces will be joining the West Sacramento City Council on Nov. 19.

Mark Montemayor, a political newcomer, took the top spot in the race for three available four year seats, with 4,061 votes, ahead of incumbents Bill Kristoff (3,908 votes) and Greg Potnick (3,232 votes), who also won a new term.

"I'm glad I won, but not glad that I won at the expense of Marna (Miller)," Montemayor said. An elections department error initially transposed the votes for Montemayor with the votes for Miller, listing Miller Tuesday night as the winner and Montemayor as finishing in last place, when the reverse was actually the case. The mistake was corrected Wednesday -- after regional media had reported the false results.

Potnick, with only 56 votes separating him from fourth place finisher Jim Cahill, has not yet claimed victory in his bid for re-election, and is awaiting the results of the final count later this week.

"I have to tell you, I'm accepting congratulations, but I have not claimed victory," he commented. "But the entire elections night (as returns came in) I ran in third consistently."

The top three people from that race, who appear to be Montemayor, Kristoff and Potnick, will join Wes Beers, whose term ends in 1998, on the city council after a swearing-in ceremony tentatively scheduled for Nov. 19 at city council chambers.

Finishing out that race were Jim Cahill, with 3,176 votes; Cindy Tuttle, an incumbent, with 3,087 votes; and Marna Miller, with 1,687 votes.

Tuttle said she was "disappointed" with having lost her council seat. Her last meeting as a city council member will be tonight.

"You can second-guess these things to death," she commented Tuesday. "I think (I lost) for a combination of reasons. Perhaps I didn't get my message out enough and didn't concentrate enough on those ares during my term I felt I excelled in. Mr. Montemayor ran an excellent campaign."

But she added that she had a lot of fond memories of her service.

"I've enjoyed working for the community," she said. "I'm very proud of the accomplishments we've done in the past four years. I've met and worked with a lot of very talented people."

In the two year race, it was a battle of challengers. Only one of the three could win, finishing

Marna Miller tries to take election result reversal in stride

■ Clerical error switched the votes for the first and last place council candidates, leaving to wrong results being released all through election night

By Steve Marschke

Oh, what a difference a night's sleep makes.

City council candidate Mark Montemayor, who campaigned like a trooper, went to bed last Tuesday bewildered at election night returns which showed him dead last in a six horse race.

And Marna Miller called it a night amidst jubilant supporters, after watching the results show her in first place, a shoe-in for a seat on the West Sacramento City Council.

But morning changed all that.

MARNA MILLER: Error in tabulating results gave her a temporary illusion of victory as the ballots were counted last week.

"People were asking me how I could have finished in last place, and I felt I had to get some kind of explanation for them," said Montemayor.

So he went to Woodland on Wednesday, the morning after the election, and told county clerk Tony Bernhard there had to be some kind of mistake.

"Tony said, 'I don't think so, but I'll check.' Then he looked, and in about ten minutes, he found a mistake."

The mistake was a computer entry error made by someone on the elections staff, who had transposed the identification codes for Montemayor and Miller. Thus, Miller was credited with Montemayor's votes, and vice versa. The first place candidate, who had 21.2 percent of the total vote had been switched with the last place candidate, who had 8.8 percent.

"It was a clerical error in the ballot program," ex-

It's Fazio, Thomson in local Congressional & state races

■ Democrats win both Assembly and Congressional races in West Sacramento area

By Steve Marschke

Again holding back a strong Republican challenge, Democrat Vic Fazio, D-West Sacramento, earned 53 percent of the 3rd district's vote last Tuesday to hold onto his seat.

Coming out second best in the heated campaign was Republican Tim Lefever of Dixon, who took 41.1 percent of the vote.

In the 8th District State Assembly Race, Yolo County Supervisor Helen Thomson earned the right to fill the shoes of fellow Democrat Tom Hannigan, who will step down from his assembly seat this month. Thomson earned 56 percent of the district's votes, repelling a challenge from Republican Ed Schlenker, who earned 38.3 percent, in another hotly contested campaign.

The remaining two years of Thomson's supervisorial term will be filled out by an appointment of Governor Pete Wilson.

In the Area Four district of the Los Rios Community College District, Ruth Scribner defeated closest rival Davis Campbell by a 41.2 to 30.2 percent margin.

The Yolo County Ballot Measure D, championed by the board of supervisors and by gravel mining interests, handily defeated Measure C, an earlier and competing initiative proposed by citizens groups.

Both measures took different approaches to limit the amount and depth of gravel mining, a major industry in the hills and creek areas of western Yolo.

Williams or Glenn? Winner in school board race too close to call

■ Final winners of local school board race may not be known until the end of this week, or the beginning of next week

By Steve Marschke

Seven votes out of over 6,000.

That's how many ballot punches separate third and fourth place school board candidates Sue Glenn and Hal Williams, with over 300 absentee and provisional ballots yet to be counted at Yolo County's election headquarters.

Glenn currently holds the tenuous lead, with 3,834 votes to Williams' 3,827.

Neither candidate has a public guess on who will join first and second place finishers Irene Eklund and Pat Flint in earning a school board term for the Washington Unified School District.

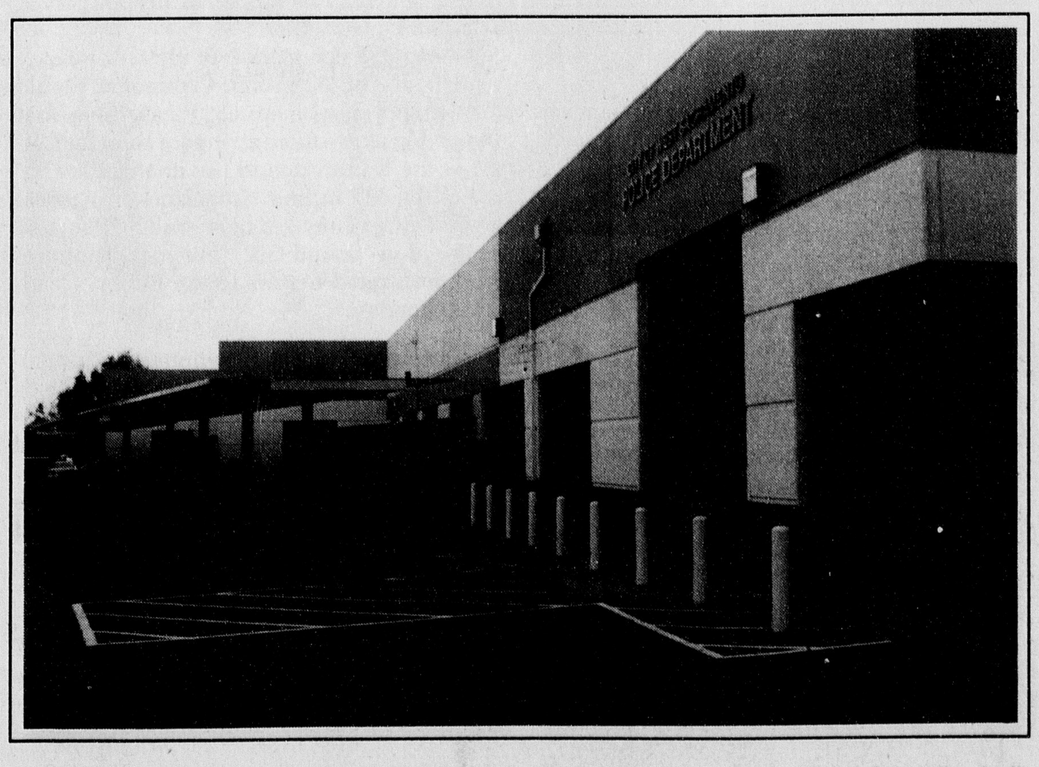
"It's up for grabs," said Williams. "Of course, I'd rather win than lose, but I'd rather get the hell kicked out of me than lose by ten or twelve votes either way, which is how close I think it will be."

"However it turns out, 50 percent of the voters will be happy," commented Glenn.

Eklund and Flint are both incumbents. Also on the board, but not up for re-election this year, were Ardeen Westvik and Nancy Candee Thompson.

The new board members will be seated in December.

Friday afternoon, it'll be official



The newly completed James H. McKnight Police Headquarters will be formally dedicated in a 4 p.m. ceremony on Friday. The public is invited to attend. Guided tours will be available and refreshments will be served.

Most of the police department's staff has already moved into the new building along Jefferson Blvd. near Triangle Ct. The department held a flag lowering ceremony at the old facility, a former county sheriff's substation in the Broderick (northeast) area of West Sacramento several hours before raising the flag officially at the new building last Friday.

The move follows the purchase of the building and extensive renovations to make it suitable as an office for the city.

Breaking free from the brain sucking solid state cube

I think I've broken the addiction. It was one of those habits that I grew up with. Along the way I justified my tethering to this slimy beast by pithy one-liners: "Hey, everyone needs a hobby," or "I can stop anytime I want to; I just don't want to." The "kicker" for me was when I had, through example, passed on to my kids this...this hideous...this onerous...this electronic-eye-box-demon-from-the-very-pit-of-hell affectation . So I thought I'd better stop watching T.V. and put the set away.

Some of you devoted readers (don't forget to send those checks and money orders!) may recall that we had abandoned our God-forsaken-intellectually-barren-brain-sucking-solid-state-cube. A long-time reader recently commented that I should write a follow-up piece on our progress. So, being a "full-service" columnist, I will comply with the overwhelming mandate from the masses. . . and do just that.

What I'm about to describe here won't be pleasant for some, for it screams against every fiber, every moral cell, every innocuous, random synaptic spark originating in their cerebral cortex

(or wherever T.V. makes thoughts come from these days). Yes! I will dare to spit into the wind of popular entertainment and the downward spiral of original thought and reveal the greenish, bumpy, flabby, scaly, slimy underbelly of the lie that you need a T.V. to enjoy life.

But I don't want to offend anyone.

Only the brave may read on. Those of you who aren't brave, turn to channel 31 and watch the latest "Hard Copy." I'm sure they're in the middle of some "sizzling, career defining" spot to settle once for all if celebrities really do use public restrooms. But those of you who are brave, those that are on top of the heap of the cultural food chain, grab a loved one (if none are available, grab a stuffed animal), and read on.

Here is my summary: Life is great! You may wonder what one does without that sewer-channelling-flow-of obtuse-information device? Well, for one, I spend more time with the kids. We unfold our futon and spread it over the couches. The jump on it, and I'm the animal in the "den" underneath which captures them for a meal. The kids are still reading more, playing "house" more, and playing with their toys more. The other day they were trying to waltz to some jazz. If you've never tried to waltz to jazz, don't try it at home. Ms. Smoot wonders (outloud) why we don't go dancing. The reason? I'm afraid we might look like two preschoolers waltzing to jazz. Another benefit of the "Sans-TV" household is that Mrs. Smoot and I are able to engage in real-life conversation and discuss future plans. We both have more time for personal projects. We've realized that the time to do productive things is there. Time is just a function of the person.

As we continue on our path of purity, it's interesting to note others' response to this subject. It's usually like, "Oh, I have to watch "Show X. I just have to. I can't miss it." Others treat you like you're part of a new, moralist religion. They say, "Oh, that's great for you. I admire that commitment." I listen, mentally call them "wimpy pagans" and walk away. This is not to say that we've never occasionally pulled the tube down to watch special shows. We have. But it's interesting to note that T.V. is no longer a central part of our lives. It is now our slave, not the reverse. And I think as we've taken back our lives, we're much happier.

Now if only I could conquer another particular debilitating vice. But first I have to find out if eating cheeseburgers is a federally recognized addiction.

If it's news and it's local, you probably read it in the News-Ledger first.

Local youth go to semi-finals

From Rick Barrett
West Sacramento Jr. Midget Bears

The West Sacramento Jr. Midget Bears advanced to the semi-final round of the state playoffs with an opening round win over the Orangevale Huskies, 38-6. The win sets up a rematch this Saturday with the Natomas Nighthawks, as the Bears look to avenge their only loss of the season.

The Bears started the game off strong, taking the opening kick-off and driving 67 yards, with Kevin Haley sprinting for the touchdown from 40 yards out. The Bears' next drive culminated in another touchdown as Eddie Craig hauled in a ten-yard pass from Jonathan Barrett and West Sacramento led 14-0.

Orangevale scored their only touchdown of the game to close the gap to 14-6, but the Bears answered right back with another score of their own, Jesus Gaeta's 30-yard pass reception keyed the drive, and Barrett's pass to Francisco Rodriguez put the Bears on top 20-6 at the half.

West Sacramento extended their lead on the opening drive of the second half, Kevin Haley scoring from 15 yards out. Chris Holman's interception on the Huskies' next drive set up the Bears' final offensive touchdown of the game. Barrett hit Haley with a five-yard bullet pass and the Bears led 32-6. Anthony Samaniego intercepted an Orangevale aerial and streaked into the end-zone to provide the Bears' final margin of victory.

Haley led a balanced rushing attack with 88 yards on nine carries. Other rushing leaders included Zeke Butcher with 48 yards, and Robert Washington for 30 yards. Barrett's three touchdown passes were a season high for one game. The Bears' dominating offensive line, led by Robert Rodriguez, Tommy Guerra, Jeff Jones and Damon Dosty, continually opened gaping holes for the running game and gave Barrett the time he needed to throw the ball.

The Bears' defense, in addition to the two interceptions, consistently shut down one of the best running backs in the league, holding the Huskies' Adam Jennings to under 100 yards rushing for one of the few times all year. Jeremiah Hunt recorded the Bears' only sack of the day, but Haley, Butcher and Mathew Baker harassed Orangevale's quarterback throughout the game.

The Bears bring their 8-1 record into this Saturday's showdown against the unbeaten Nighthawks, looking to advance to the state championship game the following week. Game time is set for 1 p.m. at River City High School. Bring the whole family.

News-Ledger Editorial

This & that

Congratulations to the West Sacramento Police Department, which FINALLY moved into new facilities on Jefferson Blvd. Friday. The move becomes official this Friday with a 4 p.m. ceremony.

The old, cramped, partly decrepit and totally inadequate sheriff's substation near the I Street Bridge is now boarded shut.

Congratulations, again, to the local school district and the team at River City High School for making the most with what they've got.

Once again in recognition of this, principal Donna White and vice principal Ken Whittemore have received recognition for their part in this, with a "Golden Apple" award from the county school board association.

Thanks and 'see ya around' to Cindy Tuttle, who worked hard as a council member for West Sacramento and campaigned cleanly and blamelessly, but lost in the election. Whatever your political agreements or disagreements with Tuttle, you have to admit she was sincere and in office for the right reasons.

Condolences to another candidate, Charles Moore, whose political positions have rarely agreed with those spelled out in this space, but who took a beating from the often unfair negative campaign that defeated him.

'Atta boy' to Bill Kristoff, who was somehow immune to the criticism levelled at his council colleagues (somebody feel free to explain that) and cruised to a second place win to hold onto his council seat.

Let's use this election as an experiment, and carefully study the results. Did the city's new campaign donation limit ordinance do an adequate job? Or is there something we need to adjust for next time?

Open letter from the motel-hotel association:

City needs to invest in local motel/hotel promotion

October 15, 1996
An open letter to Mayor Greg Potnick and West Sacramento City Council Members:
From Manhar Patel, President
West Sacramento Hotel/Motel Association

Over the past ten years since we came to you to ask for your help, we have made tremendous strides towards improving the condition and prospects for the lodging industry in West Sacramento. Although we were unable to work out an agreement on marketing assistance from the City, this has not prevented us from carrying forward an aggressive campaign to market motels and improve the appearance of West Capitol Avenue.

We request that the you consider providing the West Sacramento Hotel/Motel Association with marketing funds from the Transient Occupancy Tax as it increases. Let us explain why:

Our marketing plan, funded entirely by the Association and the motel owners has been able to increase the numbers of travelers and tourists staying in motels, thereby reducing the need to rent to longer term transient occupants.

Accomplishments we have made:

Marketing and Advertising:

Developed a 24-hour toll-free reservation hotline system that has grown from 100 calls per month to over 500 calls per month.

· Information kiosk at Greyhound Station.

· Placed advertisements in Sacramento Bee.

· Billboard advertising in Woodland on Interstate Highway 5.

Information Dissemination:

· Monthly meetings of motel owners to educate motel owners on latest lodging industry developments, advertising assistance, upgrading and improving appearance, motel operations training.

· Developed a newsletter to educate and inform motel owners and employees.

· Worked with Tourism Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

· Provided editorial and informational articles to local newspapers on motel issues such as: stopping prostitution, developing our positive lodging potential, capitalizing on our location, marketing as an economic tool to reduce longer term occupants, cooperation and teamwork to improve the prospect of positive future changes.

Community Support:

· Support the Community Parade, The Portfest, the Jazz Festival, and other local events.

· Support for various community groups -- West Sacramento Dolphins, The Christmas Basket Project, and others.

· Member of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, 7000 Strong - Asian American Hotel/Motel Association, California Lodging Industry Association, the California Hotel/Motel Association, and the American Lodging Industry Association.

Community Development:

· Worked with City and Chamber of Commerce to extend the sign ordinance deadline in order to give businesses a chance to come into early compliance (2/3 of the businesses not meeting the new standards are not motels).

· Worked to develop a consensus on how to implement the West Capitol Boulevard Bicycle Lane Project to benefit of the community and businesses.

· Supported the marketing survey for developing a hotel on the river-front property.

· Supported a plan to spread the burden of utility increases over a several year period as not to over-burden small businesses.

· Supported and worked with City Police in developing an aggressive campaign to stop prostitution by focusing on "johns."

As you can see, we have accomplished much, but there is a long way to go. We recognize our role in changing our image as well. That is why we will be increasing our commitment over the next couple of years. We plan to spend an additional $200,000 in advertising and marketing through the fiscal years 1997 and 1998. We have done what we can under very extreme circumstances, and suggested several workable solutions with no real cooperation from the City or the Staff. So we are behind ten years of worth of results due to this lack of understanding and cooperation.

Our Future Advertising & Marketing Plans Towards the Premier City of West Sacramento:

· Increase the number of billboards marketing lodging in West Sacramento (one on each major route heading toward the City).

· Repaint the billboard on Interstate 80 between West Capitol and Sacramento Avenue.

· Place advertisements in major city Yellow Pages throughout the Nation.

Letters to the Editor

From Cabaldon

Now that five months of campaigning have ended, I would like to extend my deepest thanks and appreciation to the thousands of West Sacramentans who supported my candidacy for the City Council, and to every resident who took the time to speak with me at the doorstep, on the telephone, or over the Internet, or who attended one of the election forums. I owe a special debt of gratitude to the dozens of volunteers, hundreds of contributors, our local firefighters, and many supportive neighbors and friends -- who made a truly grassroots campaign possible and successful.

I offer my congratulations to two community leaders -- Charles Moore and Dorothy Adamo -- who ran spirited but civil campaigns which focused on the issues. This was an election of which all the candidates can be proud.

The real work begins now, as I fulfill my pledge to be an independent, accessible, innovative, and accountable councilmember for all of West Sacramento.

Voting blues

I want to take this opportunity to vent the frustration I experienced on voting day. I live in Southport and work in Sacramento. I could not get to the polls before work, nor on my lunch hour because of the distance. I had long anticipated voting that evening at our usual polling place, a private home on Janet Court. I drove by at 5:30 and the line was extremely long, so I went home and walked back at 6:30 p.m. The line was still as long, but I stood in line in the cold, brisk wind. The lady in front of me said her husband had voted earlier and told her to be prepared for at least an hour long wait. She also said one of their voting booth machines was broken. I told her I was too cold to wait an hour and that I'd come back. I drove back at 7:50 p.m. and the line was still long. I went home frustrated, but on the news, a local channel said the polls were closing at 9:00, which I thought was incorrect, but was glad nonetheless. I drove back at 8:35 and the line was finally down to about six people (those six were inside the garage, I was just outside).

I stood there a few minutes and was approached by one of the workers who said he had cut the line off and was turning people away. I said, "you are going to turn away a willing, American voter?"

He said, "yes, because I want to go home." I told him what I had heard on the news about the 9:00 cutoff and again asked if he was turning me away. He again said, "yes, he wanted to go home and that it was 8:37 and the polls officially closed at 8:00."

Needless to say, I was extremely disgruntled. Let me first say that I have never had this waiting problem at the Janet Court location at any other time I voted in past years. Apparently, the area has grown to such a degree that additional residents were not considered a factor when polling locations were designated. Tuesday night was a cold evening for anyone, young or old, to be standing outside for an hour, at any given time.

Also, (although beside the point) it was frustrating for anyone standing in line, at any given time, to think their vote for President might count when the news already had announced the winner two hours earlier. Grant it, there are many other issues and areas to be voted upon and I consider it an honor as an American citizen to be able to exercise my right to vote.

But with the news hype of low voter turnout expected, 50 percent, 70 percent, etc., it was bewildering to me to be turned away at the polls because I failed to stand outside in the cold for an hour. Something's wrong here. After talking to several of my co-workers, not one person said they had to wait more than five to ten minutes in their polling area, if that.

I'm sure it was a very long day for all the workers at polling places; perhaps they should have considered that before their work day began and staffed their stations accordingly to allow for rotating shifts. All day I'd heard of gimmicks being advertised to get voters to turn out. One more voter wouldn't have kept the guy that "wanted to go home" out that much longer; he should have compensate for one of their broken machines.

Don't get me wrong,; I have the utmost respect for these workers! I have always had the highest esteem for these folks for the time and effort they put into the election process. I guess there's a bad apple in every barrel, but it's this kind of "volunteer" we don't need. This person did nothing to encourage me or the other people he turned away to vote.

After the attempts I made to vote that evening, and then ultimately getting turned away, I became one of the many other cynics that now feel "what's the point?" I really struggled with my anger, and, after some heavy-duty praying, I decided I would not let one person destroy my perspective on one of the most important rights I have as an American.

I did, however, want to let you and, anyone else that will listen, know that: 1) the volunteers at these polling places are there for a reason; if they are not willing to go the extra mile to do whatever it takes to get voters, they shouldn't be there at all. 2) that Southport, specifically the Linden/Summerfield area, has vastly outgrown the two-car garage home on Janet Court. This one location cannot accommodate the voting population in that area.

Mining companies

The results of the Yolo County ballot measures: C (the Shallow Mining initiative of Citizens with an all-volunteer work force) and D, (the County/gravel miners' ordinances to allow deep-pit mining under long term development agreements) could have been expected. Yolo County does not have campaign expenditure limits, and the gravel miners, as reported in the press, outspent the Citizens 100 to one (a half million dollars was expended by the time of the second contribution/expenditure report). It was a David and Goliath battle, but the old Goliath, while a giant, did not weight 100 times David.

Further, the Citizens tired to get out the truth that it was not "preserve, protect and restore" as the scientists (paid by County and gravel companies) and consultants stated. Now the permits confirm that Measure D will bring deep-pit mining which will render a portion of the creek channel lost to agriculture or habitat (pits range to 150 feet deep) forever.

While in the future the County can act so that elections cannot be bought, only concerted, informed recognition by the people of Yolo County can at this point prevent the absolute ruin of its Cache Creek.

The lame-duck Board of Supervisors should be held accountable now that the permits and development agreements written last year by staff of the County, paid for by the gravel industry, are revealed publicly.

Place advertisements in major city newspapers travel sections.

· Employ marketing consultant to help individual motels with advertising, appearance and training.

· Landscaping assistance for motels.

In addition to these new efforts, we will continue to support the community, work with the Chamber of Commerce, and work with the City on common areas of concern.

We are very concerned with what works to improve our condition now and in the future. That is why we are writing to you today. We are not requesting that any existing funds be allotted to the Association, merely, we are asking that as our marketing effort works, that any of the TOT increase be provided back to the Association to assist our efforts. For example, if the City currently collects $400,000 in TOT, then any amount over $400,000 beginning the next fiscal year would be funneled into marketing. If the amount collected next year is $420,000, then $20,000 would be provided for marketing. This protects the $400,000 base for the City, and provides incentive for the motels to stay the course with their advertising and general improvements commitments. We need the commitment of you, the City Council, the City Manager and staff so that we can continue the long term future program costs.

This plan is simple and workable. While some details may need to be worked out, there would not be any immediate burden to the City. More importantly, the plan will only come into play once our own money is wisely spent and increases tourism to our motels and surviving hotel!

Not everyone will support this plan. Your City Staff has indicted that the Association would have to meet impossible standards of cooperation and improvements in order for them to assist us. Not even the Chamber of Commerce can claim total support or compliance of all its members. But, we shall do what we can to get everyone to the table, as we have in the past.

We will redouble our efforts to work with the Chamber of Commerce. Since Brenda Sprouse is no longer the manager of the Harbor Inn and therefore no longer the Chair of the Tourism Committee, we have offered to serve as Chair of that committee. We will work within the Chamber to gain their support. But this effort will take time to payoff, and as the Chamber has little money for tourism, it will be incumbent upon us to do work closely with them.

From this plan the City will benefit from better-looking motels, a better-looking West Capitol Avenue and central business district, a better-looking clientele, and the City will gain an enormous spin-off effect of added dollars to the local economy due to the increased use of our restaurants, gas stations, stores and other businesses. This new clientele will export our Premier City Image by word of mouth and personal experience. And this will help bring quality development to West Sacramento.

But we need a commitment and pledge from you now, that, as the motels spend their own money to market the City, the City will provide supplemental funds from the increase of TOT revenues that are generated by our efforts.

We look forward to your favorable, written response from you within the next ten days. Please do not hesitate to make this honorable commitment; our community and our members look forward to your courage and foresight.

plained Bernhard. "As soon as I found it, I contacted everybody in the media and also people from the grand jury and the district attorney's office. All the candidates were also invited to observe the recount."

The recount of all the 6,500 West Sacramento votes was performed on Wednesday, with many observers. The votes were re-tallied manually, with one person reading the votes off the ballot and one person marking them down. A third and fourth person observed the first two counters as they worked, ensuring for accuracy.

The recount confirmed that Tuesday's results were perfectly accurate, with the exception of two names being switched.

It was a mistake that left the elections office feeling "sheepish and embarassed," said Bernhard.

Marna Miller, advised by her attorney to remain for the entire recount, left after a few hours, she said. She had a brief period of grief at learning of the new results.

"I'm not going to worry about it," she commented. "I'm going to run again in two years and get on with it. I don't mind that Mark won. I mind that this was typical of Yolo County."

Miller said she hopes other parties investigate the way the election was run, partly to examine the error and partly to ask why the ballot box from one of West Sacramento's 20 precincts was initially left behind by workers transporting ballots to Woodland.

Montemayor was understandably more upbeat.

"I'm glad I won, but I'm not glad I won at the expense of Marna," he said.

Mayor Greg Potnick sympathized with the plight that the ordeal had put them both through.

"To go to bed thinking you were first or last, and to wake up with the positions switched must have been a roller coaster ride to you-know-where for one person, and to the other place for the other person," he commented.

Montemayor, the lead vote-getter, joins second and third place finishers Bill Kristoff and Greg Potnick on the city council. They will be accompanied by Christopher Cabaldon, who won the two-year seat also on last week's ballot.

Commission on Aging

The Area 4 Agency on Aging (A4AA) Advisory Council meets this month on Thursday, November 21 in Woodland. The meeting is scheduled from 12:45 to 2:45 p.m. at the Woodland Senior Center, 630 Lincoln Avenue. A4AA invites interested individuals and representatives from agencies serving older adults to attend.

The Council will consider recommendations from the Joint Program Evaluation Committee regarding specific Agency-funded service providers. Members of the California Senior Legislature will attend to discuss their Annual Session held October 21-24, and the CSL's top ten state priorities and four federal proposals announced at a press conference at the Capitol.

Yolo County residents currently serving on the 34-member, seven-county Council are: Gerald Lester and Cindi Royval of Davis, Joyce Miller of West Sacramento, and Jean Sisson of Woodland. The nutrition project council for People Resources, Inc., a program funded by A4AA, is seeking an individual to fill a vacancy on the A4AA Advisory Council.

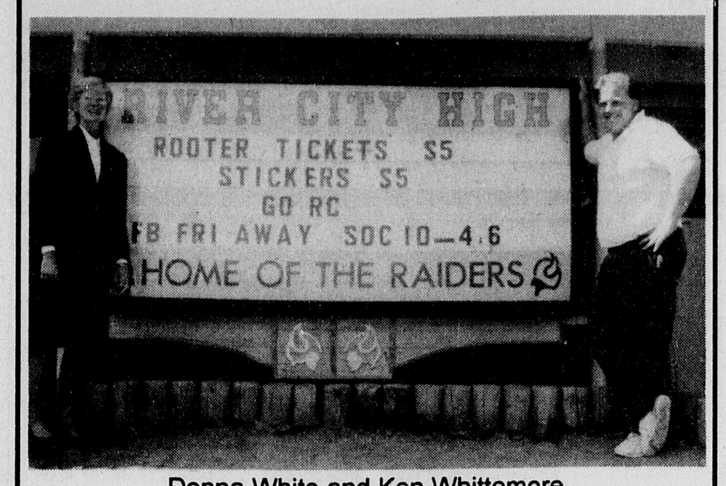
'Golden Apple'



Donna White and Ken Whittemore

The lead administrators at West Sacramento's River City High School have received a county award for their part in helping to bring acclaim to their campus.

Dr. Donna White, the principal, and Ken Whittemore, the vice principal, were jointly given the "Golden Apple" award Friday by the Yolo County School Boards Association.

White and Whittemore have been at the school for two years after being hired by Superintendent Dr. David Miller.

The award's plaque states that the 1996 Golden Apple "is in recognition of your abilities to turn a declining school into a California Distinguished School, and your leadership in improving student achievement and pride."

White said that the average grade point average has gone from 2.24 to 2.53 in two years; that unexcused absences have declined 53 percent; and that facilities have been improved and painted. The honor roll list has increase in size by 20 percent, the campus has added seven new advanced placement courses, and parent participation has improved as well, she said.

"There's still room for improvement," White commented. "I see us improving a lot more. I'd like to see us at a 3.0 ('B' average) grade point average, and that's going to take some work. I'd like to see every student here every day, ready to work. Is that being idealistic? Probably, but that's what we're going to strive for."

the last two years of a term vacated by Roland Hensley earlier this year due to illness.

Christopher Cabaldon ended up with the prize, earning 2,999 votes. He was followed by longtime city planning commission member Charles Moore, with 2,820 votes; and by activist Dorothy Adamo, with 1,687 votes.

Provided the election results hold true and are finalized in time, Cabaldon, too, will be seated as a new city council member Nov. 19.

Adding color to the local 1996 city campaign was resident Vincent Frugoli, who ran an independent and self-financed campaign to oust Potnick and Tuttle and elect Kristoff, Montemayor, Cahill and Moore.

Tuttle questioned whether such a campaign fits in with the spirit of a city campaign ordinance which forbids donations of in excess of $250 by anyone to a campaign. Because Frugoli was not contributing to the campaigns of those he supported, Tuttle said, he was able to help their election efforts while surpassing the $250 contribution limit.

This appears to have been perfectly legal.

"I'm not insinuating there was any wrongdoing," she said. "But the intent of the campaign ordinance was violated. We went through a public process so we could level the playing field and take out the special interests. I would hope the new council will take a look at that."

Tuttle added that her concern wasn't "really relevant" to this election, but was something she felt needed fixing for West Sacramento's future.

As the only incumbent bumped from her term, what is the out-going council member's advice to the new council?

"I think it's very important you not judge projects, policies or issues too soon, and try to keep an open mind to fully take advantage of public input," said Tuttle.

The election appears to have changed the composition of the West Sacramento City Council.

Bill Kristoff remains the only member of the city council's original majority, which was regarded by allies as being pro-business and by critics as being a "good ol' boy" network.

Tuttle, like Wes Beers, was at one time a Greg Potnick protege, and was closely allied with him on most major issues. The three ran for election as candidates who would bring local government back to the people, although critics maintain they have been anti-business at times. Tuttle's departure eliminates that perceived three-vote bloc.

Cabaldon and Montemayor (aside from Montemayor's inclusion on the Frugoli "slate" with Kristoff) have no obvious alliances.

"Anytime there's a change on your legislative body, you can expect a feeling-out or a settling-in period," said Greg Potnick, who will be mayor until the new council chooses a new one. "I fully intend as councilman, if re-elected, to put in place the plans made for West Sacramento. I will vigorously oppose any decision to re-visit plans put in place over the last eight years."

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 11 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday. A material raise is expected some time to-day when the crest of the flood reaches this point from Redding and other points up stream. Yesterday it was reported in river circles that the river was raising 6 inches an hour at Colusa and that the total raise at Princeton was 6 feet. Somewhat despersed at this point the raise may not exceed 3 feet when it does arrive.

Clarence Harms and J. Dufour have left San Francisco where they have been in training during the past six months. They left the bay district last Tuesday on board their destroyer for San Diego and will proceed to the Atlantic through the Panama Canal. Last Sunday Mrs. Harms, Mrs. Valentine and Alice Harms went to San Francisco to bid Clarence God speed. Some members of the Egan family also went to the bay to bid Dufour God speed.

J. N. Bennetts was a visitor in Woodland yesterday in connection with questions affecting the Postoffice.

The last word from Frank Buckingham was to the effect that he was still on board a destroyer on the Atlantic. There is a possibility that he may be sent to the Pacific Coast to fill the complement of some of the new ships lately commissioned.

George Newton, who failed to pass the medical requirements demanded of railroad firemen for service in France has secured a position on the police force at Washington, D. C. He has asked his mother to send his civilian clothes and says that he rather enjoys the change above mentioned.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Brown of Lincoln are visiting at the Peek home since last Saturday. They returned to Lincoln to-day.

Rev. G. S. Lowes has resigned his pastorate of the Washington Baptist Church and moved to Sacramento last Thursday where he bought a home. He is about to engage in Y. M. C. A. work and possibly may go to Europe later on. In the meantime one of the Sacramento pastors will serve the local congregation.

A gang of men were busy yesterday on the steamer Sentinel. It is the intention of the Sacramento Transportation Company to float the boat on the crest of the coming flood and then salvage the valuable machinery, wrecking the hull which is unfit for use.

Two hop heads were taken to Davis last Tuesday for trial after having been confined in the local jail for some time. Justice Scott fined them $10 each. The reason for taking them to Davis for trial is known only to Constable Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Brien came home from North English, Iowa, last Monday where they spent some time visiting O'Brien's parents and relatives. They visited several other large cities going and coming, and in all traveled through ten States. Mrs. O'Brien says she couldn't find any place she felt so much at home as in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Barry are back from Antioch where they spent several weeks during the late great salmon run. Phenomenal profits were made during the season by some men, while nearly all made great wages.

Word from Tom Powell of Riverbank was received by his father a few days ago. Tom has been in the thick of the fighting since September 3d, and has been wounded twice, but is now fully recovered. He enlisted with the Canadian troops about a year and a half ago, and has seen much active service.

The registration at the public school has improved somewhat since the opening day. There are 154 children in attendance now, while the attendance last year averaged 178. Many local boys and girls have gone to work and several are attending the Sacramento High School and business colleges.

Mrs. F. Mosher is desirous of letting it be known that the Red Cross greatly appreciates the work done by local children and women in sewing and knitting during the past year. Lately a quota of 100 pounds of old clothing was asked for the Belgians and 260 pounds were contributed. A junior Red Cross is to be organized very soon for the children attending the public school.

Mrs. Joseph Shaw is at her home again after several days visit in San Francisco.

Last Friday evening Frank Korrell had a narrow escape at the Third street crossing when the engine of his auto went dead just as he straddled the S. P. tracks. An approaching freight pushed the auto out of the way just after he jumped to safely. Only a broken fender was the result.

IS IT THE DUTY OF THE PROPERTY OWNER OR THE RENTER TO KEEP PREMISES CLEAN?

At the meeting of the Washington Improvement Club last Tuesday evening the promiscuous dumping of waste paper and rubbish in vacant lots and gutters was the subject of considerable discussion.

The practice of dumping waste paper, tin cans and other rubbish makes a very poor showing, especially in localities that are proud of their cleanliness.

At the north side of the S. P. railroad tracks, between Second and Third streets, a great pile of tin cans, old newspapers and other rubbish has been dumped and although not condemned as absolutely unsanitary, this rubbish makes a poor showing because it can be easily seen from trains passing in and out of Sacramento.

Some time ago complaint was made to the S. P. Company that this place should be cleaned up which was done and the watchmen on the bridge were ordered to see that no outsiders dumped their rubbish there in the future. Unfortunately, the watchmen on duty at that time have since been replaced by others and the practice continues, just as it did before.

The secretary of the club was instructed to ask the Health Officer, Henry Leinberger, Jr., to see that this practice was stopped.

Whether the tenant or the property owner should keep premises clean was discussed on account of the fact that the gutters between the postoffice and Third street is nearly always cluttered with garbage.

Postmaster Bennetts says he does everything in his power to do his share towards keeping the place clean and although he is forced to pour water from his ice cream freezers into the gutter, that water is not detrimental or unsanitary.

Val Hauser, the property owner has cleaned up this gutter several times for the sake of appearances.

The question then remains, who must see that stagnant water does not stand in this gutter to be an eye-sore to passersby.

The president of the club, Mrs. Palm, was asked to interview Postmaster Bennetts and secure his cooperation in the clean-up.

That the scarcity of labor is somewhat acute is known to all the residents of Washington, was also a matter of consideration. The two large rice mills now being constructed south of town are placing at work all applicants and are paying good wages to common laborers. The rice mills have assured The Independent that all local help will be given preference, especially married men.

Other large projects in the same locality promise much for the laboring men around Washington because from this time on there will not be a scarcity of work for any man willing to indulge.

FILLING OF STREETS WILL FORCE PROPERTY OWNERS TO FILL

The work done on the streets of Washington by Supervisor Leinberger, especially in the way of raising the grade must necessarily force property owners to fill their lots so that stagnant water may not rest thereon during the winter.

Even during the little late rain, it was manifest to every property owner in the town that to secure protection from surface water the lots must be raised to a similar grade with that of the streets, or even higher.

In all probability a rainy winter is ahead and that means something must be done to obviate overflowed lots on the part of property owners.

At best the drainage in Washington is poor, the fall of water being westward and gradually changed after years of filling against the natural course, which should be towards the river.

It is only through artificial filling that this can be overcome and artificial filling now costs considerable money. But any kind of filling or any raising of lots is better than stagnant water on property during the winter time.

This is not pleasant for property owners to contemplate, especially at this time when living expenses are above par and when patriotism calls for the use of every spare dollar for Liberty Bonds.

The improvement done to the streets by Supervisor Leinberger, especially in this particular will eventually be approved, even though it may inconvenience some property owners for the time being.

And if there is a possibility of doing more of this filling during the coming summer, or even during the winter, it should be done.

The opportunity presented several years ago for filling the entire town when Ann street was filled by the S. P. Co. for its track was a great loss, a loss that will be regretted for many years to come.

The method pursued in filling Ann street by suction dredger was the most practical one and will eventually be the only and practical method of filling all the property in the town.

NEW SET OF OFFICERS ELECTED BY RED CROSS

At a largely attended meeting of the Red Cross last Wednesday evening in the Town Hall a new set of officers was elected for the coming term. The following were selected: President, Mrs. F. Moser; Vice-President, Mrs. S. T. Rickard; Recording Secretary, Mrs. A. M. Cameron; Financial Secretary, Mrs. W. A. Parkinson; Treasurer, Mrs. C. Hart; Director of Sewing, Mrs. W. A. Curry; Director of Transportation, Mrs. H. Buckingham; Director of Auxiliaries, A. M. Cameron; Chairman Local Civilian Relief, J. N. Bennetts; Chairman Membership, Mrs. I. Manchester; Chairman First Aid, Mrs. H. Eugene.

A committee was appointed to dispose of a lot in North Sacramento which was donated to the Red Cross some time ago by A. Casselman. The committee consists of Mrs. S. T. Rickard, Mrs. P. A. Hart and Mrs. W. A. Parkinson.

Of the amount pledged some time ago, namely, $1,400, there has been collected already $1,200 and several months to work yet.

Some pledges, however, are away behind and are being neglected.

It was decided at the meeting to donate $100 to the Sacramento headquarters.

NO SLACKING HERE IN ANY WAR WORK ACTIVITY

Since last Saturday, the first day of the Fourth Liberty Loan Bond drive, Henry Buckingham and John Patterson have signed up more than $5000 in donations from the people of this district.

This amount is far from the quota assigned the district but is a fair start.

A concentrated effort will likely be made during the coming week to put the district "over the top."

Washington has not been slow in any sacrifice asked since war was declared against Germany. In men and money Washington has done wonderfully well, and will not fall down in the Fourth Liberty Loan Drive.

The service flag of the town has 69 stars, one of which is a gold one.

That is as great a proportion of the population or a greater proportion than is shown by any town in the State.

In War Saving Stamps Washington has nearly over topped her quota.

In Red Cross work Washington is away ahead of its quota.

On account of the fact that many residents of the town being engaged in the employ of the S. P. Co. those men have been forced to buy Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds in Sacramento. That is unfair to Washington, and unfair to those who are not so engaged.

But Washington will go over the top all right.

CALLED TO NEW YORK BY SERIOUS ILLNESS OF SON

Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Eugene were notified by wire from Camp Hempstead, New York, that their son Percy was seriously ill.

That evening they took the train across the continent and arrived in time to find him greatly improved, and practically out of danger.

Last Sunday relatives received word from them that they would start soon for the coast, after they were assured of Percy's complete recovery.

They are expected home in a few days.

A QUIET WEDDING

Last Tuesday Miss Harriett Todhunter and Claude Howard were married in Sacramento by Judge O'Brien at the court house.

Only a few friends were present at the wedding feast which was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Howard was born and raised in Washington, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Todhunter. She had just passed her twentieth birthday and the groom was only a few years older.

In a new auto presented to the bride the young couple went to Chico for their honeymoon.

Open Letter From Vince Frugoli

Thank you to all the good citizens and amigos of West Sacramento, Southport, Broderick and Bryte! Thank you for re-electing Bill Kristoff and for electing Mark Montemayor! You promised me that you would elect some new blood into City Hall and you did it! Thank you for that! It is too bad that Jim Cahill lost by 56 votes. Maybe I could have worked a little harder.

I promised you that I would live in harmony with anyone you chose, and I will do so. Although I know that Chris Cabaldon, the new city council member, looks like, I have never spoke with him. I did, however, listen to him speak at the West Sacramento Soroptimists Candidate Night. I saw his campaign slogan and the thing I remember clearly is that he was going to take care of every street in West Sacramento, Southport, Broderick and Bryte. If he does what he promised, I think we have a fair man who will care for and respect the people who have lived in West Sacramento their whole lives.

Now, we need Wes Beers (Greg Potnick's rubber stamp) to think and vote his own conscience, LISTENING TO and HEARING the good people in our little city. If he doesn't, we'll get together again in two years and elect someone else in his place.

As for Mayor Greg Potnick, I respect you for the effort and hard work you put into your campaign. You and your wife worked harder than all of the candidates, including myself. If, during the next four years, you give the citizens of West Sacramento half of the effort and attention you gave your campaign, I guarantee you will win the next election by more than 56 votes.

Local history groups host discussion of paddle-wheelers

From the Yolo County Historical Society

The Delta King and Delta Queen, paddle-wheel steamboats that plied the Sacramento River from 1927 to 1940, will be featured Sunday, November 24, at a meeting co-hosted by the Yolo County Historical Society and the West Sacramento Historical Society at the Turner Library in West Sacramento. Stan Carvey will tell the twin riverboats' true story using slides of historic photos and readings from his book, King & Queen of the River.

As floating deluxe hotels both sternwheelers ran as "night boats" between Sacramento and San Francisco, and were the last steamboats to carry passengers and freight on California waters. World War II ended the boats' service on the Sacramento River when they joined the U.S. Navy, serving on the Bay as hospital ferries, barracks, and troop shuttles.

Stan Carvey began doing research for his book on the "Delta twins" upon taking early retirement from "Sunset Magazine" ten years ago. His research included scouring archives, interviewing former passengers and crew members and finding hundreds of photographs. It took him four years to write the book. Mr. Carvey has presented his slide program several times aboard the Delta Queen on its voyage between Little Rock and New Orleans.

The Turner Library is located at 1212 Merkley Avenue in West Sacramento. The public is invited, there is no admission charge. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call 371-7508.

California Military Museum seeks volunteer docents to help

Men and women with, and without, military experience are being sought to participate in the upcoming Docent Training session set for the afternoon of November 10 at the California Military Museum.

Docents are involved in every aspect of the California Military Museum's operations and activities. The volunteers guide tours for visitors, plan and build exhibits, catalogue and inventory artifacts, answer citizen inquiries about military history, and staff the business office.

The state's official military museum is a private, non-profit group that depends upon volunteers to operate. CMM Director Brigadier General Donald Mattson said, "Volunteers are absolutely essential to our continued survival. They are the most important people, the best resource we have, to help visitors understand what our military men and women have accomplished to keep America free."

Those interested are requested to call the CMM to reserve a space at 442-2883.
